(c) what are the major findings of such a survey regarding the land use pattern in the country and its variation during the last three years?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY AND IN THE DEPARTMENTS OF OCEAN DEVELOPMENT, ATOMIC ENERGY, SPACE AND ELECTRONICS (SHRI SHIVRAJ PATIL): (a) to (c) The National Remote Sensing Agency (NRSA), has conducted surveys for various users in different parts of the country using satellite and aerial remote sensing data for a number of applications such as land use, ground water targetting, geology, snow cover, flood mapping etc.

2. As a part of a systematic exercise to extend the knowledge thus gained in the use of remote sensing data to nation-wide application, a survey of forest cover for the entire country by interpreting satellite imagery available for two periods 1972-75 and 1980-82, was also done. The comparison of the study results for the two periods show that tree covered areas in 1972-75 and 1980-82 are respectively 16.89% and 14.10 per cent of the total geographic area of the country. In order to stabilise the methodology for operational uses, comments have been received from the concerned Central and State Government Departments/agencies and these maps are being improved upon. It may be noted that these maps are for addressing forest vegetative cover and are not for showing cultivated land, desert land and dry lands separately.

3. Mapping of wasteland for the entire country is being done by NRSA as a part of the work required for the National Wasteland Development Board. The survey results will attempt to delineate wasteland including undulating uplands which could be considered for dry crop and social forestry, and sandy areas including desert land.
